New 24, 2020 Version 8.22.3 Error fixes and performance improvements Let me just start by saying that the whole team with the Bible app is just amazing! I get email updates about what you do both with the app and in real life all the time, and what you're all doing is amazing. Really spectacular! I would also like to say that the app has really allowed me to connect more with God with easily accessible plans, dedications, friends and several different versions of the Word right at your fingertips. However, I have a proposal for future updates in the future. Of course, it's just a suggestion, so you might have something else planned or you're doing something else, and that's absolutely fine. My suggestion is if we could see where we took the message. At the moment, I can't find out where my past notes are, and I think it would be cool if you looked at them again when you read a book, chapter or verse to see how this particular part of the Bible affected us. I think it could be accessible through where we can already point out, make a picture, make notes, etc. and then next to vers, who has a note, a little icon. Again, it's just a suggestion. You don't have to take it into account. Still, You're all working. Work. Improve both the Bible app and the lives of others are amazing! The app is super awesome, is very accessible (on this note, I even have it on the keyboard), and everyday affects the lives of those who choose to dive into the Word of God! 🍀 a great app for the Bible! It has the ability to read you holy letters while you read along, which I absolutely LOVE! It has the ability to highlight and compare verses with other translations to try and understand the scriptures more fully. I also like the image creation feature. And I love that it's been updated so I can design it to match my phone's wallpaper... so you can help me remember the holy worlds better by saving on than my phone wallpaper. The only suggestions I would like to see updated are if you could share links in comments, or at least the ability to copy a link from a comment. You can't copy anything from comments at this time. I would like to share links with sermons that are used on verses that my friends emphasize or study... I'm sure there are a lot of mistakes and security guards that we should introduce to make sure that no one can share anything inappropriate. As a parent, I like to know that my kids can't click on anything and see anything they shouldn't, so I don't know if the benefits would outweigh the risks... Even if you could give us the ability to find online image searches that match the faith I'm creating for... if not no big one. I'm just looking in a web browser and I save the pictures and create them after they've been stored on my phone, but I thought it could have made it more flawless. Everything in The All Great App!!! I like it and use it mostly every day. I downloaded this app for my journey in my search for my faith. I haven't prayed or read the Bible in 17 years. I was once a well-in-person Christian lady who attended church twice every Sunday, on Wednesdays and every time something was happening in the church. There was a personal tragedy, and I walked away from religion and God. I stepped away from me. Over the last year, I've felt an empty part of me that wanted to. I didn't know what I wanted. When I realized I couldn't inspire others anymore, I hit my knees and that's when I knew what was missing. I started looking for God again and talking to him. I came across this app and it helped me so much! In addition to the Bible, which I can read or read to me, bible studies are very insightful. I like to be able to choose from the growing list of Bible studies. Everything from depression to marriage and everything in between. I've been touched so many times by daily reviews and notifications. It seems that there's always something that gets in the way when I need it. Like a message from a friend that says, Hey! I'm right here. Some things are the right time and exactly what I need right now. I like that I can take a verse that moves me and makes a picture. on my phone or share on FB. You can connect with friends and family and contacts who use the app, and you can participate in group Bible studies. I like this app! Developer App Support Privacy Policy
